

HISTORY (HI)

HI 1005 Introduction to History and Social Studies Education (1)

Introductory course intended for first-semester students majoring in (or considering) History and Social Studies Education. Explains the wide range of career paths and professional skills enabled by college-level historical study. Students gain enhanced advising for SSE and HI degree options, learn to navigate the first year of college, meet faculty and staff, and get acquainted with historical resources on campus. Falls.

HI 2006 Ancient and Medieval Civilizations (4)

This course explores civilizations from their emergence to around 1500 AD/CE, with particular focus on the geographic regions of China, India, the Middle East, the Mediterranean and Europe. Students will learn to interpret images and historical documents and the ways the environment influences cultural development from the areas under study. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 2005 or HI 1110. Falls. (GACO)

HI 2011 Modern World History, 1500 to Present (4)

An introduction to world history since 1500. Traces global patterns, historical change, and interactions of people and geography. Themes include commercial exchange and economic development, human migrations and encounters, transportation and communication technologies, and the emergence of the modern world's political landscape. Not open to students who earned credit for HI 1160 or HI 2010. Springs and Falls. (GACO)

HI 2016 History of Modern Europe, 1300-2000 (4)

Introduction to the development of major geographic, political, economic, and cultural events in European society, from the Late Middle Ages (14th century) to the present. Traces major ideas and institutions that helped shape the modern world and concludes with an analysis of current shifts in global relations between nations, regions, classes, and cultures. Not open to students who have earned credits for HI 2015. Springs.

HI 2223 Methods, Theories, and Careers in History (4)

Surveys the major skills, issues, and applications of the field of history. Students work with historical primary sources, including textual documents and numerical data, and they learn how to select and analyze scholarly sources. Covers the history of the field, its main subfields, and key theoretical approaches; differences among academic, public, and popular historical media; and careers for which historical study is a particularly useful preparation. Not open to students who have earned credits for HI 2222. Falls. (QRCO) (WRCO)

Prerequisite(s): Sophomore status.

HI 3117 Revolutionary America, 1763-1815 (4)

The American Revolution unleashed changes that reverberate to today. Explores the Revolution chiefly as an American event, considering its origins, the extent to which it altered American society and politics, and the ways in which the forces driving the Revolution influenced the history of the United States during its early years as a nation. Not open to students who have earned credits for HI 3116. US Group. Spring of odd years.

HI 3145 Antebellum America, 1815-1860 (4)

Draws on the disciplines of history and literature to examine the United States in the tumultuous period between the early republic and the Civil War. Focuses on the era's reform movements, cultural experiments and clashes especially over slavery. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3140. US Group. Falls Odd. (DICO) (INCO)

HI 3155 American Civil War and Reconstruction (4)

This course examines the Civil War era in a broad social and cultural perspective. Topics include the roots of the conflict such as slavery, the market revolution, westward expansion, cultural differences, and political clashes. Coverage of the war years will focus on battles and servicemen's experiences, but also on various home fronts, political and economic aspects of the war, and concurrent events. The course also studies the varieties and end of Reconstruction. Readings will include primary sources such as newspaper accounts, personal chronicles, and photographs. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3150. Spring of even years.

HI 3210 History of China (4)

Provides an overview of Chinese history from its beginning to present. Through extensive reading, class discussion, lecturing, and writing, students understand Chinese political structure, economic system, social framework, and ideologies over time. They explore why and how these systems developed over centuries and their legacies today. World Group. Spring of odd years. (GACO)

HI 3220 Sex, Slavery, and Empire in Global History (4)

Invites students to the history of gender, race, and social class through studying the European attempt to colonize the world, 1700-1900. Covers ethnic cleansings, weaponizing sexuality, themes of agency, resistance, solidarity, and social justice activism; and the heroic struggles of indigenous women, women of color, and LBGQT populations. Explores poetry, film, fiction, memoir, art, and web pages. World Group. Fall of odd years. (GACO)

HI 3230 Topics in European History (4)

Specialized topics in the history of Europe not normally covered in depth in other history courses. May be repeated for credit with a different topic. Europe Group. Falls and Springs. (GACO)

HI 3342 New Hampshire and New England History (4)

This course explores the rich and diverse history of our state and region. It also shows how past events at the local level interacted with national and international events and cultural changes. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3340 or HI 3341. Falls.

HI 3351 Women, Gender, and Sexuality in American History (4)

Examines women's experience on its own terms by exploring women's societal positions, roles and role models, achievements and failures. Also examines gender as a changing cultural construct affecting men's experiences, and considers varieties of sexual experience, orientation, and identity over time. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 2680 or HI 3350. US Group. Spring of even years. (DICO)

HI 3355 Health and Illness in American History (4)

Traces the history of health, illness and the pursuit of wellness throughout American history. Deals with illness and medical care as well as sport and physical exercise. Focusing on 3 distinct eras – the early 19th century, the decades around 1900 and the period following World War II – examines varieties of health experience and explores how individuals and communities have negotiated their health concerns. Offers a critical consideration of various definitions and models of wellness as they have changed over time, particularly in the physical, intellectual, social and environmental dimensions. Not open to students who have earned credit in HI 3354. US Group. Spring of odd years. (WECO)

HI 3357 American Ideas (4)

Examines main currents in American thought from the Puritan era to the present. Follows both the activities of intellectuals and the changing pursuits that have made up a broader intellectual culture in America, particularly drawing on the disciplines of literature, philosophy (including religion), the sciences (particularly biology) and history. Explores how ideas arise and appear, relate to each other, change and recombine, cause events and create realities. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3356. US Group. Falls Even. (INCO)

HI 3359 Law and Society in US History (4)

Why do laws change over time? Does the American legal system reinforce or challenge societal power structures? This course explores how law and legal systems have shaped and been shaped by US cultural, political, economic, and social forces from settlement to the modern era. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3358. US Group. Unscheduled. (DICO)

HI 3405 Love, Sex, and Family in Medieval Europe (4)

Everyone comes from a family of some kind, but the ideas, practices, and values surrounding sex and reproduction can vary between cultures. This research seminar will study love and family in medieval Europe, including its Roman and Christian background. Topics will include law, kinship, medieval marriage and consent, courtly love, childbearing and -raising, and alternative sexualities. Springs Odd.

HI 3465 The British Empire in World History (4)

Explores the construction and manifestation of British Imperialism, at its height, from the late 18th century until the early 20th century. Focuses on political, cultural, economic and material history as it pertains to specific regions in South Asia, Southern Africa and the Atlantic community. Examines the formulation of "imperial ideologies" and studies how the application of these ideologies shaped Britain's role in world history. Specific topics include: British slavery, commerce, naval power, gender politics, fashion, foodways, migration, famine and railroads. Emphasizes themes such as interdependence, global exchange, cross-cultural connections and interaction. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3460. World Group. Springs Even. (GACO)

HI 3485 The French Revolution and Napoleonic Era, 1789-1815 (4)

Between 1789 and 1815, cataclysmic events centered on France shook the existing social order, redrew the map of Europe, and triggered movements and institutions that shaped the modern world. This course analyzes historical dynamics of the French Revolution and Napoleonic Era and their long global legacy, from gender to law to warfare. Falls Even. (GACO)

HI 3526 The Great Depression in Film, Print, and On Stage: An Interdisciplinary History (4)

Examines the US during the Great Depression (1929-1941) using multiple disciplinary approaches that have shaped the fields of history, literature, and theatre. Emphasis is placed upon the ways the events and themes of the period were experienced and recorded, with attention to issues of race, class, gender, ethnicity and ideology. US Group. Falls Even. (DICO) (INCO)

HI 3535 Home Front, USA: The WWII Era in the United States (4)

Using the themes of race, class, gender, and ethnicity, this course examines the changes Americans created as they moved towards fighting a total war, engaged multiple enemies, and declared many victories. Some call WWII "the Good War." Exploring its home-front history allows us to appreciate this, if also ask whether it is the best way to remember the era. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3530. US Group. Fall of even years. (DICO)

HI 3571 Interrogating US History (4)

Critically examines the ways modern textbooks and other parts of large metanarratives have constructed the history of the United States, including New Hampshire. Provides students with materials to re-construct themes and topics in light of contemporary critiques. Not open to students who have earned credits for HI 3570. Springs. (DICO) (TECO)

HI 3590 Religious Conflict in Early Modern Europe (4)

Introduces students to the religious conflicts Europeans engaged, 1400 - 1650 AD. We will look at both Protestant and Catholic Reformations as well as radical reform movements, witchcraft, Judaism in early modern Europe, and early colonial contact with Native Americans. The course will mainly proceed through discussion of modern scholarly perspectives on the era, along with a substantial research project. Falls. (GACO)

HI 3775 Islamic Empires (4)

Studies the formation and development of imperial institutions and cultures in the Islamic world from the era of the first conquests to the breakup of the Ottoman Empire in the early 20th century CE. Students will explore the interaction of politics with areas such as religion, culture, ethnicity, gender, economy, and intellectual life over this period. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 3770. World Group. Springs Even. (GACO)

HI 3815 Topics in United States History (4)

Specialized topics in history not normally covered in depth in other history courses. May be repeated for credit with a different topic. US Group. Offered occasionally.

HI 3825 Topics in World History (4)

Specialized topics of world history (not US or European history) not normally covered in-depth by the history curriculum. May be repeated for credit with a different topic. Not open to students who have earned credits for HI 3820. World Group. (GACO)

HI 4001 History Internship (1-8)

Students apply historical skills and knowledge to work activities as determined by the student, a supervising faculty member, and a site supervisor. Expectations usually include 40 hours per credit, including onsite time, documentation of activities, and possible background reading and writing. Repeatable for a maximum of two enrollments. Pass/No Pass. Instructor permission required.

HI 4200 Career Launch: Tell Your Story (2)

Students assemble an integrated understanding of their academic, extracurricular, employment, leadership, and overall growth during college, and learn to narrate their expertise to personal networks and prospective employers. Students also research career and graduate school options and sharpen career readiness tools. Falls and Springs.

HI 4455 History Capstone Seminar (4)

Integrates historical knowledge and skills as a culminating experience in the major. Students write an original historical research paper using secondary literature and primary sources. They present their work in a formal setting using state-of-the-art technology. Assignments guide students through the process of formulating, researching, and writing the paper, as well as develop students' technological acumen. Not open to students who have earned credit for HI 4450. (TECO)

HI 4910 Independent Study (1-4)

Allows independent study in history on a topic of student interest, with faculty guidance. Customized syllabus could include reading (generally one book per credit), written work, research, and/or a digital humanities project. Student must seek approval from the supervising faculty member, program coordinator, and advisor if applicable. Repeatable up to 4 times or 16 credits. Instructor permission required.